

ABSTRACT

A flexible multilayer metal structure includes using multiple layers interlocked to form folds holding the layers together. These folds can extend into non-edge portions of the multilayer structure so that the multilayer structure 5 defines air gaps that aid in producing a heat-shielding effect.